

Dr. Jen Wong R2

Educational background: I went to Queens for an undergraduate degree in psychology and biology. Then I completed my medical education at St. George's in Grenada.

Hometown: I was born and raised in downtown Toronto.

Research/Academic interests: I'm interested in Child psychiatry: I like that you have a chance at changing children at an early age and there is a huge opportunity to change their environment and how they grow up. I did a lot of palliative care research and quality of life in cancer patients prior to my Psychiatry residency.

Hobbies/personal interests: I am a foodie that enjoys cooking and baking. I like to watercolour paint, and stay active by going to the gym.

What would you like to tell prospective candidates to our program?

I think the size and close knit community of Queens is the right size for you to grow as a physician.

What does your ideal day look like?

I'd like to wake up at 9am and make my cappuccino. Sip on my coffee while I listen to music or read a book. Then see friends or hang out with family.

What is your favorite sound?

The "tsch tsch" noise of the milk frother in the morning from my espresso machine.

What is your greatest accomplishment?

I would say, getting into the Psychiatry program at Queen's University!

What is your most treasured possession?

My iphone camera because it captures many good memories.

Describe the color yellow to somebody who has never seen the colour.

It's light and it's warm.
